The patrol, inspection, and control operations of the Vietnam Coast Guard play a crucial role in safeguarding Vietnam's coastal areas, territorial waters, and exclusive economic zone. These operations are aimed at maintaining maritime security, enforcing laws and regulations, protecting marine resources, and ensuring the safety of navigation.

Patrols conducted by the Vietnam Coast Guard involve the deployment of vessels and aircraft to monitor and surveil the country's maritime domain. These patrols cover a wide range of activities, including maritime surveillance, search and rescue operations, and law enforcement. By maintaining a visible presence at sea, the Vietnam Coast Guard deters illegal activities, responds swiftly to incidents, and protects the sovereignty and integrity of Vietnam's waters.

Inspection activities carried out by the Vietnam Coast Guard involve the examination of vessels, both domestic and foreign, to ensure compliance with maritime laws and regulations. Inspections are conducted to verify the validity of licenses and permits, check for adherence to safety standards, prevent smuggling and illegal activities, and enforce fisheries regulations. Through thorough inspections, the Vietnam Coast Guard seeks to maintain order, protect the marine environment, and uphold the rule of law at sea.

Control measures implemented by the Vietnam Coast Guard involve monitoring and regulating the movement of vessels within Vietnamese waters. This includes controlling maritime traffic, conducting port security operations, and regulating the entry and exit of vessels in sensitive areas. By exercising control, the Vietnam Coast Guard aims to prevent unauthorized activities, enforce maritime boundaries, and ensure the safety and security of ports and coastal infrastructure.

The patrol, inspection, and control operations of the Vietnam Coast Guard are carried out in coordination with other relevant agencies, such as the Navy, Fisheries

Surveillance, and Customs, as well as with international partners. These operations contribute to maintaining maritime order, protecting national interests, and supporting the sustainable development of Vietnam's marine resources. The Vietnam Coast Guard's dedication to patrol, inspection, and control activities underscores its commitment to maritime safety, security, and the rule of law in Vietnamese waters.

III. GRAMMAR

1. Must

a) Use

- “Must” expresses strong obligation. Generally, this obligation comes from inside the speaker.

Eg: I must get my hair cut. (I think this is necessary)

- Because “must” expresses the authority of the speaker, you should be careful of using “You must...”. It sounds very bossy.

Eg: You must help me. (I’m giving you an order).

- “Must” can express a strong suggestion.

Eg: You must give a ring when you are next in town.

b) Form

- Positive:

S + must + V(infinitive) + (O)

Eg: I must try harder.

She must study more.

- Negative:

S + must + not + V(infinitive) + (O)

Contraction: must not = mustn’t

Eg: You mustn’t steal anything.

They mustn’t enter that room.

- Interrogative:

Must + S + V(infinitive)?

- Yes, S + must.

Note: Questions with “must” are possible, but the use of “have to” is more common.

- “Have to” expresses strong obligation. The obligation comes from outside – perhaps a law, a rule at school or work or someone in authority.

Eg: You have to have a driving license if you want to drive a car.

The doctor says I have to do more exercise.

- “Don’t/ doesn’t have to” expresses absence of obligation (it isn’t necessary).

Eg: You don’t have to do the washing up. I’ve got a dishwasher.

She doesn’t have to work on Monday. It’s her day off.

b) Form

- Positive:

S + have/ has to + V(infinitive) + (O)

Eg: Do you have to wear uniform? Yes, I do.

Does he have to go now? No, he doesn't.

- Wh-question:

Wh + do/does + S + have to + V(infinitive)?

Eg: What does she have to do now?

- Note: The past tense of “have to” is “had to”, with “did” and “didn’t” in the question and the negative.

V. PRACTICE

Exercise 1. Reading

It is difficult to describe a “typical” military day, because schedules vary widely between different branches, job specialties and particular missions. Many military occupations, such as medical staff or military police, work in shifts, and so their work day may begin early in the morning or late at night. Nonetheless, the following schedule gives a general idea of the typical military.

- 05.30-05.45: wake up; make bed, shave, dress for PT (physical training)
- 05.45-06.30: PT; warm-up, a 4-5 mile run, push-ups, sit-ups, stretching exercises
- 06.30-7.00: shower and dress
- 7.00-08.00: breakfast and barracks maintenance, i.e. cleaning
- 8.00-12.00: report for job duties (training units will report to classes)
- 12.00-13.00: lunch
- 13.00-17.00: continue job duties or training classes
- 17.00: formation; troops gather information to hear any special instructions for the next day, and to be officially released for the day.

The afternoon may also include special ceremonies, drills, or additional training.
