

UNIT 6: COMMUNICATION ON THE VIETNAM COAST GUARD SHIP

I. INTRODUCTION

The communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ship is decisive for the completion of any sea voyage. The following lecture will introduce readers to the purposes and forms of communication on board the Coast Guard ships.

Using of communication systems on the Vietnam Coast Guard ship.

II. TEXT

The communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ships is for the purpose of conveying the commander's orders to combat positions to perform regular duties as well as unscheduled missions. In particular, the communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ships also transmits reports of violations detected to the headquarters.

Communication can be compared to the circulating blood vessels connecting all activities of Vietnam Coast Guard ships. In addition to bearing the general characteristics of the communications industry in the whole army, it is worthy of the golden words that Uncle Ho commended for "timely-accurate-confidential-safe".

The communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ship also has a more extensive feature in the scope, fields, objects, options and solutions for law enforcement in many situations, in many sea areas with different legal regulations.

The communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ships is for the purpose of conveying the commander's orders to combat positions to perform regular duties as well as unscheduled missions. In particular, the communication on the Coast Guard ships also transmits reports of violations detected to the headquarters (commonly handling violations, seeking guidance when there are violations beyond the normal handling capacity). There are many forms of communication on board the Vietnam Coast Guard ships currently in common use, with three main forms:

1. Morse
2. Hand flags
3. Moose lights

Depending on the case and the level of urgency, the direct commander on board will order the communication staff to use the appropriate form of communication to transmit confidentially, quickly, and accurately.

The communication on board the Vietnam Coast Guard ships is decisive for the completion of all missions at sea. In any situation, communication needs to be guaranteed to be transparent because it requires high "combat independence" accuracy and timeliness. Communication like blood vessels inseparable from a healthy body, determines the success of any mission.

III. GRAMMAR

 Imperative verbs

Imperative verbs are verbs that create an imperative sentence that gives an order or command.

a) Form

- Positives:

V (+ O)

Eg: Relax.

Finish your homework.

Take a deep breath.

Imperative verbs actually do have a subject, but it is never stated. That subject is “you” (the second-person singular or plural).

Imperative verbs are always stated in the simple present. Because the subject is the unstated “you”, the verb form is the simple present, second-person singular form (which looks like a base verb). It never takes an -s (third-person singular) ending.

- Negatives:

DO + NOT + V (+ O)

Contraction: Do not = Don't

Eg: Do not turn off GPS.

Don't change to automatic steering.

Don't work too late.

- Questions in English almost always include a subject.

Eg: Do you accept shore-based navigational assistance from the pilot?

b) Function

- We use imperative verbs to give commands or directions, state rules, or give advice. In fact, the word imperative means commanding, important or controlling.

- Remind English language learners that imperative verbs can be directed at one person (the second person singular) or two or more people (the second person plural).

- Common uses of imperative verbs include:

+ Captains telling the second officer what to do:

Eg: Complete your duty!

Hoist the flag signal Oscar and report!

Maintain visual contact with a person in the water!

Don't navigate by yourself!

+ Teachers giving instructions to students:

Eg: Finish the exercise on page 8.

Stop talking!

Open your books to Chapter 2.

Don't look at your phones in class.

+ Employers giving instructions to employees:

Eg: Hand in that report by Friday.

Don't forget about the meeting tomorrow.

Turn your computer off when you leave.

Stop by my office.

+ People in authority, such as police officers, telling other people what to do:

Eg: Don't drink and drive.

Put all metal objects into this container.

Fill out this form.

Show me your ID.

+ Rules, guidelines, or laws:

Eg: Don't run by the pool.

Do not trespass.

Take off your shoes.

Dress appropriately.

+ Friends or family members giving advice:

Eg: Don't forget to call him back.

Follow up with an email.

IV. VOCABULARY

1	case	/keɪs/	n	báo vụ
2	confidential	/ˌkɒnfɪ'denʃl/	a	bí mật
3	hand flags	/hænd flæg/	n	cờ tay
4	headquarter	/ˌhed'kwɔ:təz/	n	Sở chỉ huy
5	timely	/'taɪmli/	a	kịp thời
6	transparent	/træns'pærənt/	a	thông suốt
7	unscheduled	/ʌn'sedju:ld/	a	đột xuất

V. PRACTICE

Exercise 1. Read the text and answer these following questions:

1. What are the golden words that Uncle Ho commended for the communications industry?

=>

2. What are the purposes of the communication on the Vietnam Coast Guard ships?

=>

3. What are the differences between the communication section on the VCG's ships and the one in general?

=>

4. How many forms of communication on the VCG's ships?

=>

5. Who orders the communication staff to use an appropriate form of communication?

=>.....

6. Why does communication needs to be guaranteed to be transparent in any circumstances?

=>.....

Exercise 2. Complete the following sentences using the imperative form with “less” and “more” and the available words.

1. You have a toothache. _____(candy).
2. _____ (exercise) if you want to meet the requirements of the upcoming basic training course.
3. _____(vegetables), and you will feel healthier.
4. The examination is coming. _____(TV).
5. _____You look like lack of sleep. (sleep).
6. _____ (fish), and you will be smarter.
7. _____You are putting on weight. (fast food).
8. _____ (try / talk) when you have a sore throat.
9. _____You have a cough. (warm water).
10. _____ (sunbathe), or you'll get sunburnt.

Exercise 3. Discuss the questions with your partner. Use the phrases below to help you.

Expressing opinions

I believe that...

I think that...

In my opinion,...

In my view,...

As I see it,....

It seems to me that...

I'd say that...

1. Do you think people depend too much on technology? Give examples.
2. Do you think any of advance technology will have disappeared fifty years from now? Explain your opinion.
3. Do you think it's wrong to copy songs and films from friends rather than buying them? Why?/Why no